Good Evening and Welcome Fellow Pioneers and Guests:

As we enter our 51st year of existence, it is appropriate to remember that our amazing group was founded initially to identify and recognize accomplished cable pioneers and celebrate their camaraderie at an annual banquet. Over the years, as the spirit of these initial Cable TV Pioneers lives on, the profile and purpose of our organization has changed dramatically. Now, inclusion in the Pioneers goes beyond just years of service in the industry and encompasses those who demonstrate leadership, progress in their careers, community and civic involvement, and the commitment to "go the extra mile." Today's membership is over 500 strong and reflects members from every segment of the ever-evolving cable industry. We are MSO chiefs, independent operators, trade journalists, engineers, financial executives, regulators, bankers, teachers, marketers, association executives, programmers, attorneys, equipment manufacturers and, at heart, we are all entrepreneurs.

One of the lasting legacies of the Pioneers is the Cable Center, founded by our group in 1985 on the campus of Penn State University. The Center relocated in the mid 1990s to its current home here in Denver and serves as the non-profit educational arm of the cable industry. The Center is the main repository of our industry's history, and therefore very special to the Cable TV Pioneers.

Tonight, we celebrate our new relationship with SCTE-ISBE's EXPO, as we honor this year's class of inductees who reflect not only our industry's history, but also our future!

The Board of Directors of the Cable TV Pioneers warmly welcomes you to tonight's dinner. We thank our wonderful sponsors who help make this event uniquely special every year. Please take a moment to look at the list of the terrific companies who are this year's sponsors.

Please enjoy the evening. We are glad you are here!

MATTHEW BLANK

New York, NY

Matt Blank's contributions to the pay television business are numerous and legendary. From his first assignments in marketing and sales with HBO in the mid-70s to his leading role in Showtime's development and growth for the last three decades, Matt left his mark on the network's brand and the industry at large.

As Chairman and CEO of Showtime, he grew the network's portfolio from the trio of Showtime, the Movie Channel and FLIX to include 27 digital channels and a stand-alone streaming service available through Amazon, Google and Roku.

Matt serves on the NCTA Board of Directors and the Cable Center, and received the Stanton Award for Excellence in Communications from the Center for Communications. Other honors have included induction into Broadcasting & Cable Magazine's Hall of Fame in 2008, the Cable Center Hall of Fame in 2009, the Vanguard Award for Leadership and the Joel P. Berger Award from Cable Positive.
